HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which most surely brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act; the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the landis a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use
SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills in the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.
It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"
The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.
SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.
One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.
If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.
Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.
There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated; the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.
Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.
Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.
Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each, $1.50 per bottle, or $9 for half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists. Ap.12 1y.

TO MARY.
BY WILLIAM FARRELL.

Now, Mary lay reserve aside—
You know it ne'er can please me;
It hurts me sore to hear you chide,
Then why thus over tense me?

Thy rosy cheeks, and thy bright youth,
And all thy modest beauty,
Believe me, dear, I speak the truth,
Were made for other duty.

The birds were made to soar thro' air,
With songs the world beguiling;
For pleasure, too, the lilies fair,
And Mary's lips for smiling!

Then, why distort that pretty face,
To charm by Heaven intended,
Where beauty reigns, and every grace
With sweetness God has blended?

Tined with the cold return of love,
With which you so perplex me,
I sometimes swear by all above,
You never more will vex me.

When last we met my heart was sore,
You know then how we parted;—
Oh! Mary, thus my life why bore?
Why make me broken-hearted?

No longer, Mary, let me pine,
But show by your consenting,
'Tis wiser far, our lots to join
Than be thus e'er repenting.

STRONG MINDED GOVERNMENT

"Is Mr. Cutts in?" asked a gentleman, who, having knocked at the door, was saluted by a woman from an upper window with "Well, what's wanting now?"

"Yes, he's in, or about somewhere, I suppose," she replied, "but I'm Mr. Cutts when any business is to be done. He's Mr. Cutts eating, drinking, and sleeping sometimes."

"Well, my good woman," said the gentleman, "I think he will be Mr. Cutts for my business, too. I wish to see him.

"What do you want with him?" asked the shrew, thrusting her head still further out of the window.

"To do something for me. But I must see him myself," was the reply.

"Is it real business, for pay, or only a favor you want? I can let your hoss have a peck of oats, or I can—why, I can do anything for you that he could and a good deal more! I take the money, and write out receipts, and pay the men, and trade off the produce. I'm as good a judge of stock as he is, and I can't be beat on a horse."

"But," said the gentleman, drawing down his face solemnly, "you can't take his place now. Find him for me at once."

The shrew was baffled.

"Maybe you don't understand the circumstances of this case. The farm is mine, and it was my father's afore me. Mr. Cutts, he hain't no more claim to it than that bench there has. And besides, I am seven years older than he is, and a foot higher, and weigh twenty-two pounds more.—What's your business on my place, if I may be so bold?"

"To see and talk with your husband," replied the gentleman, getting out of his chaise and hitching his horse to a post, as if he meant to stay until he did see him.

"Be you a doctor? 'Cause there ain't a living thing the matter with Cutts. He is the wellest man in town, and sobe I," said the woman.

"No, my good woman, I am not a doctor Do you think your husband will be in soon? Send the boy to find him."

The boy looked up to his mother's face, but he knew his own interest too well to start without orders.

"Then you're a minister, I suppose, by your black coat. I may as well tell you, and save you time, that we don't go to meetin', and don't want to. It ain't no use for you to leave tracts for nothin', for I've got a big dairy, and haint no time to idle away reading; and I keep him at it so early and late, that when he's done he's glad to go to bed and rest."

"I'm no minister, madam; I wish I was though for your sake," said the gentleman. "Send for your husband. I cannot wait much longer. I must see him at once."

The boy started to his feet again, and looked in his mother's eye; but it gave no marching orders.

"Look-a-here, mister," now appearing at the door, and looking defiantly at him, "you are a schoolmaster hunting up a district school; and you think he's a committee-man; but he ain't this year."

"I never taught school, and never mean to," said the stranger.

"Ma'am Cutts," as her neighbors called her, dropped her hands at her side, and heaved a sigh. She had found a man she couldn't manage.

"See here, now, mister," she said, "I'm one of them that can't be deceived. I can read a body right through, and I knew what you was the blessed minnit I clapped my eyes on you. I can see by your overlastin arguin' that you are a lawyer. We haint got no deeds drawed, nor no wills made; so if you are hunting a job out of my husband, you may as well drive on. We know enough to make a little money, and I know enough to hold on to it."

"My good woman, you entirely misunderstand my errand. I can tell no person but himself what it is, and I must tell him in confidence, alone. If he chooses, he may break it to you in the best way he can."

"O, goodness sakes alive! Brother Lot's blowed up in a Mississippi boat, I bet! O, la me, the poor fellow! He left me something, didn't he?"

"I never heard of him, and nobody's blowed up that I know of," replied the man.

"O, now I know. You are the man that wants to go to Congress, and have come here a hunting for votes. He shan't vote for you! I hate politicians, especially them that go agin women, and thinks they are made to drudge, and nothing else! I go for equal rights—men and women—for Scripture says, 'There isn't neither men or women, but all one in politics?' I believe the day's coming when such as you will have to bow the knee to women, afore you can get the big places and high pay that's eatin us up with taxes. You can't see my husband. We are going to the polls on the way to the mill, and I promise you he votes right."

"I am no candidate, and I don't know who you are talking about. Ah, there comes the man I want."

And the stranger went towards Mr. Cutts, who had leaped a pair of bars which led from the potato patch into the lane.

Mrs. Cutts flew into the house for her sunbonnet, to follow them, but by the time she got to the bars her mysterious visitor and Cutts were driving rapidly down the road.

The strong-minded woman shouted after her husband—

"You'd better come back, I tell you."

But the wind was the wrong way, and carried her words into the potato patch.

"Sir," said the gentleman to honest Cutts, "I have a very simple question to ask you; but I shall have to ask you in confidence. I will give you five dollars if you will promise me not to repeat my words until to-morrow."

"Well, sir," replied Cutts, "I should not like to answer any questions that would make trouble among my neighbors. I have my hands full now to keep out of scrapes; but I've done it, and haint an enemy in the world as I know of."

"But, sir, you need not reply to my question unless you are perfectly willing," said the stranger.

"Ask your question, sir, and I will not repeat it."

"Well, Mr. Cutts, I am laying a fence on the Briseley place, that I have just bought, and I was directed to enquire of you where I could buy cedar posts. A fellow in the store said: "Cutts can tell you if his wife will let him, but she won't. She will insist on telling you herself, and perhaps offer to drive with you wherever you go to order them."

"I told them I would see you, and ask you only, and the young fellows bet on it. They are to give you ten dollars, and to two or three of the widows a cord of wood each, if I succeed in asking this question alone, and making sure your wife won't know my business till after breakfast to-morrow morning."

Cutts knew his wife's "standing" too well to feel very sensitive, and, taking the bill from the stranger, he smiled and said:

"I will go out with you to look for cedar posts and keep dark for the job's sake; but I don't know if she will let me stay in the house to-night, for I don't own it," replied the good-natured Mr. Cutts.

"Suppose you go up and see to the setting of the posts. I will send a boy to tell her you had to go off suddenly on a little business, and will be back in the morning."

"I will do that," replied Cutts, "for I never quarrel with her, but let her have her own way. I don't worry myself about trifles."

"Good man," said the stranger, "there are no trifles in life. The smallest act is important, and this easy good nature of yours will ruin your family. Baffle that spirit to-day, and next Sunday take your boys and go to the house of God, whatever she says, and be a real man at the head of your own house and family."

"It is rather late to begin, said Cutts, shaking his head in a way that would have warned others from the trap in which his feet were fast. "You see the purse is her's," he added, "and that has been a crueler fetter than her will to me. But I will try to begin anew, for her good as well as the children's."

During the afternoon and evening ma'am Cutts discovered the whereabouts of her lord, and went after him.

All the way home, and far into the night, she used both eloquence and threatenings to find out the mysterious errand of that hateful nabob that come into town to separate happy families.

About midnight she wore herself out and went to sleep; but at break of day she began again. He then ventured to say, "as soon as breakfast is over I will break the news to you."

"You'll never eat a morsel in my house, I can tell you," cried ma'am Cutts, "till you have told me what that man wanted to tell you."

"Then you will wait a good while to hear it," said Cutts, "for I've vowed I'd never tell it till I'd first eaten my breakfast," and with these words he went out.

Ma'am Cutts endured the torture as long as possible, and then got breakfast. She called at the door to no one in particular, "Come."

But Cutts didn't come. And after a while she went out to the barn, and found him seated on an upturned half-bushel measure, calmly peeling and eating a raw turnip.

"I does seem as if this man has possessed you. I never saw you so selfwilled since I took you home. Your breakfast's all cooling; do come in."

Here was a point gained.

Cutts went in as requested, and ate his breakfast. When this was over, ma'am settled herself back in a chair, with her face full of expectation, and said:

"Now, begin. What did that are man want?"

"He wanted some cedar posts," replied Cutts, without looking up, "and that was all."

If an arrow had struck ma'am Cutts she could not have manifested more surprise and shame.

"I'm the laughing stock of this town" added Cutts, "and from this hour I turn over a new leaf. I am henceforth head of my family, and unless this house is made mine, I shall finish off a room in the barn, which is mine, and you will be welcome to share it with me. If not, I'll live there with the boys, and you will find me a civil neighbor."

Ma'am Cutts' power was broken.—Since then the farm has been called "John Cutts' place," and he is head of the house.

The Leaders at Bull Run.

Nine years ago was fought the battle of Bull Run, and in recalling the fact, and the great changes that have since occurred in the condition of the country, it is singular to note that of all the conspicuous men on both sides who figured on that field, but two or three that survived it now take any part in public affairs.

General Irvin McDowell, who commanded the Union fores, remains still in the Army of the United States.—General Sherman, who led a brigade of Taylor's, division; is Commander-in-Chief at Washington; and General Burnside, who, in the early part of the engagement, was in the van, is now Governor of Rhode Island.

General Tyler, commander of the first division, whose baptismal name, strangely enough, is given as Daniel by one historian of the war, and as Robert O. by another, lives in Connecticut, in the prosecution of private business enterprises.

General David Hunter, who commanded the second division, and who never sustained himself more gallantly than on that day, lives in retirement at Washington.

General S. P. Heintzelman, the third division commander, is on half pay, after forty-four years' service, is president of a New York insurance company, and lives at Englewood, New Jersey.

General Theodore Runyon, commanding the fourth division, is out of service, and lives in Newark.

Colonel D. S. Miles, who led the fifth division, it will be recollected, underwent the humiliation of surrendering Harper's Ferry, and was killed upon the spot.

Of the brigade commanders of Heintzelman, General Franklin is now superintendent of Colt's rifle works at Hartford; General Howard became the head of the Freedmen's Bureau, and General Wilcox, after serving to the end of the war, and participating in the assault on Petersburg, was killed, if we are not mistaken, in the recent disgusting casualty of the fall of the court room in the capitol at Richmond.

General Patterson, of Pennsylvania, from whom the rebel General Joseph E Johnston slipped away to join Gen. Beauregard, is a prosperous cotton manufacturer in his native State.

Generals Johnston and Beauregard, of the rebel army, are now railroad presidents, and Jefferson Davis, who rode over the field after the battle had been won, is the president, not of a republic, but of an insurance company at Memphis. General D. R. Jones, of S. Carolina, who bore a conspicuous part in the fight, died of consumption during the war, in Richmond. General Ewell, who afterwards lost a leg, is now in private life, and Longstreet is Surveyor of Customs at New Orleans. Wade Hampton is planting cotton.—Bee and Johnson, of South Carolina, and Barlow, of Georgia, (the last-named one of the best soldiers and one of the truest gentlemen of the South, eminent at the bar and wise in council,) were all killed on the field. Stonewall Jackson and Jeb Stuart, the strength of the Southern army in the two arms of the service, survived Bull Run to fall on other fields. Early, known as Jubilee, is a dweller in the rural districts of Virginia, which he finds, after all, more congenial than the cold exile of the Canadas.

Cholera Infantum.

An eminent physician in the Hearth and Home gives the following remedy for cholera infantum:

The immediate remedies are such as allay the excessive irritation of the stomach and bowels, and sustain the strength. The first indication is best secured by providing a good wet-nurse, if the child is hand-fed. If the nurse cannot be obtained, the food must be prepared with the greatest care. Goat's or cow's milk, fresh, is perhaps the best substitute. The food of the nurseling must be given in small quantities, or entirely withheld for a few hours. It is worse than useless to urge food upon a stomach which instantly rejects it. Water must be given very sparingly, as it is scarcely tolerated. Of the simple domestic remedies, lime-water, and when the skin is cool, a few drops of brandy, allay irritation and sustain the circulation.—The lime-water should be given with or immediately after the food, a half teaspoonful diluted with milk. Brandy should be given, diluted with water, five to fifteen drops, and repeated every two or three hours, unless the skin is hot. Warm applications of spirits to the bowels relieve the pain. The most important measure to be adopted is the removal of the child to a place where it will have a pure and invigorating air. The effect of this change is often surprising.

Stability of Character.

Stability in its philosophical sense, is opposed to movement—to change. When restricted within the limits that head this article, it signifies, negatively, not fickleness, not irresolution, and not wayward.

All creation, excepting man, very strikingly exemplifies this element. The glittering diamond acted upon at different times by similar forces is similarly affected. The tiny plant always rears its drooping head when the rain spatters upon it, or the sun plays among its pale leaves. The animal provides food and shelter for itself in consequence of its inward monitor, instinct. Thus, we find all nature bearing testimony to the same great law, constancy; "like causes produce like effects."

But in man, the focus towards which all minor objects extend their glory; do we find self exerting a controlling influence over his spiritual person, the ego; while the animal is partly governed by inexorable laws which some persons would carry into his very spiritual nature, thereby making him a being of circumstances.

Man is a free agent. He can choose; he can will. That choice, that will, and the tenacity with which he clings to it, form the man. In it is embedded his character, his worth. Man is influenced to choice by motive, and just at this point is the opening for so many different characters—some pleasant, some disagreeable—that we meet in the world.

Motives are presented to the mind for a consideration which must be pro or con. These affect different minds differently. Some think seriously and deeply and generally come to a healthy conclusion. Others think lightly and superficially, and mostly come to a sickly conclusion. While still others don't think at all, but adopt what either of the others says. The last is the worst, the most ruinous, and the least. Their littleness is shown in actual life. Not accustomed to think for themselves, to rely on their own abilities, as far as expedient, they, like the sportive butterfly, skip from flower to flower, but instead of gathering honey, they are unsuccessful and reap a harvest of thorns. They have minds but they rest them. This gross evil into which many fall, is owing much to the instruction they receive. The student has presented to him truths, axioms, and solved problems, to be memorized, and then satisfaction is rendered to the educator. Here a great error is made in education—the how is taught and the why is neglected.

It is no difficult task to acquaint oneself with this class of persons. They may be known by their readiness to accept any doctrine that becomes current; and by their speedy retractation of the same. To-day they are enthusiastic in advocating a certain truth, to-morrow they are none the less enthusiastic in opposing it. They are as flexible as the tree which leans in the direction of the wind. They go with popular excitement or rather with the giants of their circle, without a murmur. They have no stability of character. Indeed they are not the same thing long enough to establish their manhood. When and how to address them is always a doubtful question. They become, as it were, abject slaves, twisted and attracted by every whim of doctrine; the libertines which nature made them by granting them freedom of thought, they value as little and barter for nothing. Dr. Channing has well said, "that mind is free which protects itself against the usurpations of society, which does not cower to human opinion, which feels itself accountable to a higher tribunal than man's, which reverences itself too much to be the slave or the tool of the many or the few." That is the type of freedom we want. Our nation in all its functions has need of such men; men, knowing the right, dare maintain it in the face of party strife; men who are themselves and not organs for other men.

Society is calling for men of stability—men on whom she can depend to-morrow with as much certainty as to-day. These form the backbone of society. May we not reasonably anticipate that the young men who are now entering the battle of life, are not so charitable as to walk in the paths prepared by other hands; concede to the views and opinions of others without self-investigation, and sacrifice their natural freedom? REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS,

DANIEL J. MORRELL,

OF CAMBRIA COUNTY.

[Subject to the decision of the Congressional Conference.]

FOR STATE SENATOR,

HENRY S. WHARTON,

OF HUNTINGDON COUNTY.

[Subject to the decision of the Senatorial Conference.]

FOR ASSEMBLY,

DAVID ETNIER, of Mount Union borough.

FOR ASSOCIATE JUDGE.

A. J. BEAVER, of Penn township.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

ABRAM MILLER, of Barree Township.

FOR DIRECTOR OF THE POOR.

JOHN P. STEWART, of Oneida township.

FOR JURY COMMISSIONER.

S. BRYSON CHANEY, of Huntingdon,

FOR AUDITOR.

HENRY NEFF, of West township.

It would be as well for Mr. Morrell to call off his dogs from barking at the heels of men who were not under pay to serve him.

THE reduction of army officers by resignation, under the recent act, is going on so rapidly that it has been found necessary to check it by stringent regulation.

THE temperance men in Massachusetts have nominated Wendell Phillips for Governor. It is thought his nomination will compel the Republicans of that State to adopt a Prohibition platform.

Gen. James Potts, on account of ill health, has withdrawn as the removal candidate for the Legislature in Cambria county, and an adjourned convention was called to meet at Cresson on the 20th inst., to nominate another candidate.

THE Congressional Conference will meet sometime—immaterial when—as Mr. Morrell is already nominated, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon and Mifflin, all, instructing for him. He is the nominee, and the Republican candidate.

A NEW association has been formed called the "National Anti-secret Society." One of its objects is to exclude from the church all persons who have any connection whatever with secret societies of any kind. When secret-society men are excluded there will be pews to let in most of the towns and cities.

THE Democratic Senatorial Conference will meet sometime this week.—R. Bruce Petrikin, of this county, J. C. Everhart of Blair, Alexander of Centre, and Dr. Crawford of Juniata, will be the candidates before the Conference. The Democratic Congressional Conference will nominate somebody, perhaps R. M. Speer of this place, if he will consent to run.

THE Republicans of Blair County placed in nomination the following ticket: Senator, John A. Lemon; Assembly, B. L. Howitt; Associate Judges, George W. Patton, Joseph Irwin; Prothonotary, A. S. Morrow; Sheriff, Captain H. B. Huff; Treasurer, Joseph Baldridge; Commissioner, D. S. Longenecker; Poor Director, Abraham Loudon; Jury Commissioner, Jos. Stifler.

BLAIR county politics must be very loose. Mr. Morrell carried the county by a vote of the party by 694 majority over Hon. Samuel Calvin, a citizen of Blair, and one of the best and most able Republicans in that county. The vote is a disgrace to the party of Blair—to permit one of its ablest party men to be stricken down by a stranger. Of course politicians and those influenced by them know how it was done—but there may be many who believe the vote was public opinion. Shame on Blair for striking down Calvin.

THE Senatorial Conference will meet the latter part of this or sometime next week. The candidates asking for a nomination are Harry S. Wharton of this county, Walker Woods of Mifflin, Wilson of Centre, Lemon of Blair, Robison of Juniata, and we believe Perry will also present a man.—Mr. Wharton received the nomination in this county and is entitled to receive the help of every Republican in the county to make his nomination by the Conference, but we know that many of Mr. Morrell's leading friends here, who were prominent disorganizers last year, are opposing his nomination by the Conference. We advise such to be careful—they may get into deep water.

DURING the last fiscal year of Buchanan's administration, the expenses per capita were two dollars and one cent, while the usual expenses of the Government per capita for the last year under Grant were one dollar and sixty-four cents. Democratic papers please publish.

The Pope, it is said, has complimented King William on his successes.

TAX GATHERERS.—No individual of the official community has a more onerous or unpleasant duty to perform than the tax collector. His "duty" is performed among all phases of human character; he is obliged to approach the high and the low, the rich and the poor, and demand from each the Governmental tithe; and even the fair sex are subjected to his unwelcome visitation. But what need he care; he has his duty to perform and perform it, he must. He knows he has the Government to sustain, and feeling the importance of his great task, he dons the helmet of boldness and the visor of assumption and goes on his errand of gathering up the hard and easy earnings, regardless of the whims and whimpers of his too often dilatory victims.

The tax collector is a necessity—not exactly of war but Government; though in peace he prepares for war by supplying the means that build the ships and erect the forts. He should therefore be honored for the position he holds by all good subjects of the powers that be, and be sent away speedily with his receipt given and his heart lighter. But let no tax-collector imagine himself a conqueror, and go forth more like the lion than the lamb. He will gain nothing by arrogantly assuming himself the master, and the taxpayer the dog. Civility and urbanity are the weapons of his warfare with which he can make the subject unbosom himself and unloose the purse-string. Let him who is the gatherer remember this, and let the payor perform his "duty" without a murmur, unless indeed, taxes are undoniably oppressive, and then have recourse to legislation.

LABOR CONGRESS.—A National Labor Congress met in Cincinnati last week, and adjourned on the 18th.—Several colored delegates were recognized in the Convention, one of whom was a Mr. Wears, of this State. The following platform and resolutions were adopted by the Convention:

First. That laborers in all departments of useful industry are suffering from a system of monetary laws made during the war.

Second. That the rate of interest is disproportionate to and in excess of the national wealth.

The third demands the repeal of the national banking system.

Fourth. Greenbacks that are not full legal tender should be withdrawn, and a currency based on the wealth of the nation issued as a legal tender for all debts, public or private, convertible into three per cent bonds; bonds also convertible into money, at the pleasure of the holder.

The fifth opposes payment in gold of 5 20 bonds, the principal of which is legally payable in lawful money.

Sixth. The burden of the government should bear equally on all classes. Exemption of bonds bearing extortionate rates and high taxation are violations of the first principles of labor.

Seventh. The tariff should be modified to admit the necessaries of life and such articles of common use as we can neither produce nor grow, duties for revenue to be mainly laid on articles of luxury; such articles as we have the material in abundance will develope the resources of the country, increase the number of factories, give employment to more laborers, cause the immigration of skilled labor, create a permanent home market for agricultural products, destroy the necessity for odious and expensive internal taxation, and soon enable us to compete with the manufacturers of Europe.

Eighth. The public lands belong to people, and should not be sold to individuals nor granted to corporations, but saved as a trust for the people, and granted free of cost to settlers in amounts only of 160 acres.

Ninth. The treaty-making power has not authority in the constitution to dispose of the public land without the joint sanction of the Senate and House of Representatives.

A CURIOUS DECISION.—The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has decided that where by negligence sparks from a locomotive set fire to a warehouse near a railroad track, the railroad company is liable for the damage done by the fire, but strange to say the same tribunal also decides that if another house caught from the flames of the burning building set on fire by the locomotive, the owner of the said premises has no remedy. The railroad company, it was held, was only responsible to the first person, who by the negligence of the railroad company's servants had his property set on fire and destroyed; but although the second sufferer was injured by precisely the same reason, because the fire kindled by the locomotive spread to him, he had no remedy.

THE Ohio Republican State Convention has nominated its state ticket, and put forth its platform for the October elections, embracing the choice of a full delegation to the House of the next Congress. The platform is in favor of the continued ascendancy of the Republican party, endorses President Grant's administration, declares the party in favor of a revenue tariff discriminating in behalf of home industry, in favor of a change in the navigation laws permitting the registration of foreign-built vessels, and against the policy of granting subsidies of public lands to corporations and monopolies. The sympathy of the resolutions is fairly with the Prussians as against the French in the pending conflict.

Military operations in the Island of Cuba have suspended on account of hot weather, sickness and rains; but it is thought they will be resumed again the coming winter.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

LONDON, August 17.—This morning the advance of the Prussians continues almost without serious interruption.

At Metz the French army received a coup de grace, and has since fallen back upon Verdun in a demoralized and shattered condition.

The retreat has been most disastrous. Even individual soldiers were rendered desperate by the agony of the situation, and denounced in unmeasured terms the incompetency of their generals.

The Emperor, is believed to be the actual commander of the army.

BERLIN, August 18.—The details of the conflict at Point a Mousson have just been received. Marshal Bazaine, endeavoring to fall back from Metz to Verdun, was attacked at nine o'clock on Tuesday morning by the Fifth Division, and forced to face about. The Prussians were admirably firm, though they sustained the attack of four French corps, among them the Imperial Guard. After fighting gallantly for six hours the Prussian Fifth Division was reinforced from the Tenth Corps. These reinforcements arrived opportunely. The French found that a prolongation of the contest would be impossible, and they retired upon Metz with a loss of two thousand prisoners, two eagles and seven cannons. The French utterly disregarded the convention of Geneva, by mutilating the dead, firing on surgeon's ambulances, &c.

A Plausible Summary of the Recent Movements.

The New York Tribune of this morning says:

The remnant of MacMahon's Corps, which escaped from the Vosges Mountains after the battle of Haguenau, retreated to Lunoville, Nancy, Commercy, and thence, it is inferred, fell back towards Chalons, closely pursued by the Crown Prince Frederick William, with the army of the South.—On the 14th inst. the advance guard of this Prussian army had reached Blesme, 28 miles by railway from Chalons. On the same day, the right wing of the prussians, known as the army of the Saar, under General von Steinmetz, appeared before the eastern walls of Metz, and carried, after four hours' fighting, the outer works of Bellecroix. The French army under Bazaine evacuated Metz on the same night. On the 13th, it encountered the centre of the Prussians, which had crossed the Moselle between Metz and Nancy, and had endeavored to seize the road between Metz and Verdun by which Bazaine wished to retreat. It was for the possession of this road that the several engagements of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were fought. The battle of Monday was under the western walls of Metz; that of Tuesday was at Gravelotte, four miles west of Metz; that on the 17th instant was at Mars-la-Tour, six miles from Metz. From present indications the French here gave up the struggle, and abandoning the road to Verdun, fled toward Etain.

The Times publishes a special telegram from Berlin this morning, which contains the following intelligence:—

The French army has been separated by the victory of the Prussians at Mars-la-Tour. The main body has been forced back on Metz and brought to a stand by the first and second German armies, under Prince Frederick Charles and General Steinmetz. The road is now open to Chalons for the Crown Prince, who has only General Trochu and some fragments of Marshal MacMahon's crops to encounter on the way. The decisive event impends.

A Tremendous Battle on Thursday.

BERLIN, August 20, 8 a. m.—The following telegraphic dispatch has just been received: A great battle was fought at Rezanville on Thursday.—The action was opened on Wednesday morning, and at the termination of the day our army occupied a strong position upon the field. On the morning of Thursday the battle was renewed. The French were commanded by Marshal Bazaine, and fought desperately. Our troops sustained their assaults firmly. The contest was fierce and prolonged. The battle was opened at eight in the morning, and for ten hours the action raged furiously. At nightfall the French, under Marshal Bazaine, were totally defeated. Loss on both sides 40,000 in killed and wounded. We have taken many cannon and a great number of French prisoners. The King of Prussia commanded and directed the movements of the German army throughout the battle.

BERLIN, August 20, 10 a. m.—King William of Prussia, from the headquarters of the victorious Prussian army upon the battle-field, has telegraphed the following account of the battle to Queen Augusta, which was received this morning:

HEADQUARTERS OF THE PRUSSIAN ARMY IN THE FIELD, REZANVILLE, Thursday, August 18.—We are again victorious. The French, who were occupying a strong position to the west of Metz, were to day attacked under my leadership. Our troops went steadily into action and fought splendidly. After a battle lasting over nine hours we dislodged the enemy from his base, and completely defeated him. Communication with Paris has been cut. I have established my headquarters on the battle-field. WILLIAM.

Bombardment of Strasburg.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The bombardment of the city of Strasburg from a point near Kehl begun on Friday morning and continued till noon, when it was suspended for two hours. The return fire from the garrison was almost harmless.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—A Prussian officer, with a flag of truce, on Friday demanded the surrender of Strasburg. He was received with shouts of the populace, "We shall never surrender." The commander of Strasburg then dismissed the Prussians with the words.—"The people have given you my reply."

BRUSSELLS, August 20.—A Paris letter to the Independence Belge says McMahon is retreating on Paris, and will avoid an engagement unless he can form a junction with Bazaine.

The yellow fever has prevailed to quite an alarming extent in Philadelphia. Eleven deaths occurred, but it is thought there will be no spread.

HON. A. K. MCCLURE has published a letter in favor of calling a State Convention to revise the State Constitution. The following are the principal reforms suggested by Mr. McClure:

First. The increase of the number of legislators to say one hundred Senators and five hundred Assembly men. The cost of such bodies meeting annually under proper constitutional regulations would not exceed the cost of our present Legislatures. In all States where there are large legislative bodies, corruption has never gained the ascendancy. Most of the New England States forcibly illustrate this fact.

Second. Legislative powers should be restricted to general laws. All private remedies should be in the courts, and all appropriations by private bills prohibited.

Fourth. All bills and all amendments thereto should be printed and on file before a final vote could be had on them.

Fifth. All increased appropriations for ordinary expenditures should require a two thirds vote in each branch and all bills authorizing the creation of State debts (except to defend in war, repel invasion, or suppress insurrection,) with the bills creating the revenue to liquidate such debts, should require the sanction of a popular vote.

Sixth. The session of the Legislature should be limited to sixty days, and the salaries of the officers fixed by the Constitution. Fully thirty-nine out of every forty bills passed by our late Legislatures have been private bills. Sixty days would be ample time for the consideration of all public measures.

Seventh. All Legislators elect should be required in qualifying as members, to swear or affirm that they have not, directly or indirectly, paid or promised any thing of value to influence votes to elect them, and that they have not received, and will not receive, anything of value in consideration of any official act.

Eighth. The State Treasurer should be elected by the people for a term of years, and the public funds placed beyond the reach of private speculation.

A Terrible Calamity.

The Pt. Pleasant, (W. Va.,) Journal learns, from a reliable source, the particulars of the following horrible affair, which occurred in Roane County a few days ago:

A lady, whose name our informant had forgotten, residing upon the above named creek, had went down to it in the morning for the purpose of doing "the week's washing," taking with her the youngest child, an infant of about a year old, leaving her other three at the house. While engaged at her work she heard suppressed screams at the house. Taking up her little child from the soiled clothes upon which it was sitting, she placed it in an empty wash-tub to keep it from crawling into the creek during her absence, and hastened to the house, where she met her oldest child with its head frightfully disfigured and swollen. She hastily gleaned from this one that the three children had crawled under the house in search of eggs; that while under something had hurt them, and that the two other children were still under the house. The mother upon looking under the house found them dead, with several moccasin snakes (a very poisonous and deadly species) crawling around their bodies. The neighbors were alarmed, and by their assistance the snakes were killed and the unfortunate children taken out, their bodies presenting a frightful and sickening appearance. By this time the elder one was a corpse. The mother, in her despair and agony, had forgotten until now her little one at the creek, and upon going down to the creek for it it was only to find it also a corpse in the creek. It is supposed the little child climbed up in the tub and was holding on to the lower edge of it when the tub upset, rolling the child into the water below and drowning it. It is said the mother's grief was so great that at last accounts she was a raving maniac.

Terrible Disaster.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Norwalk left Coney Island at 7 o'clock, and when coming through the narrows she met the bark Lady Helen. It is said the Captain of the Norwalk did not give the right way. He blew his whistle as he saw the boat approaching, but it was too late, and the bark struck the steamer amidship carrying away her paddle wheel and bullwarks. The bow of the bark penetrated the steamer making a large hole.

There were over five hundred passengers on the Norwalk. Many were standing near the wheel, which was torn off. The bow of the bark struck a number of them, knocking some 30 persons into the water. Many of them were fished out. Seven persons are missing, among them Alderman Duffy, Thomas Carrol, keeper of Breevoot Hall. Quite a number of persons received severe contusions.

The excitement on board the steamer was fearful. Two hundred passengers were taken on board the bark.—The steamer with the remainder was towed to Red Hook in a sinking condition.

A Frightful Accident near Pottsville.

POTTSVILLE, August 10.—At four o'clock this afternoon a cage in the shaft of Glassmier & Rince, near Middeport, containing twelve miners, was precipitated to the bottom, two hundred feet, by the giving way of the hoisting machine.

The following were killed: Thomas Quigley, George Stouch, John Roper, Jacob Kline, David Jones, and John Matthews. Wounded: John McGwinly, E. Mannels, Hugh McAnnaly, and Albert Koch, all terribly, and William Matthews and Patrick Day, slightly.

It was several hours before the bodies could be brought out of the shaft, as a temporary cage had to be constructed to hoist the dead and mangled bodies to the surface.

The funding bill bonds are being printed rapidly. The faces of the former Presidents will appear in the series, together with Benton, Burlingame, Farragut, and others.

LATEST NEWS.

Empress Eugenie sent a message to Queen Victoria to act as mediator for the settlement of the present difficulties, but she replied that she cannot interfere.

A fight occurred at Blondeville, O., on Saturday last, between the members of Noyes' circus and the citizens. The circus men were drunk. One of them was shot dead, and one citizen was mortally wounded.

Berlin, August 22.—The army of the Crown Prince of Prussia is near St. Dozier, apparently intending to march upon Paris by the valley of the Aube river.

London, Aug. 22.—Marshal Bazaine is reported to be under the guns of Metz. The Prussians are between him and Paris. MacMahon is thought to be surrounded.

Paris, Aug. 22.—It is generally believed here that the march of the Prussians cannot be arrested before reaching Paris. It is said there are now nearly 300,000 good troops here.

Washington, Aug. 22d.—President Grant has issued a proclamation of neutrality. It recites all the laws and treaties between the United States, France and Prussia, and forbids any citizen occupying a commission entering or enlisting in the service or hiring any other person to go beyond the limits of the United States to engage with either of the belligerent powers.

FATAL RESULT OF A BALLOON ASCENSION.—The Saginaw, Michigan, Courier, of a recent date, says: The sports at the grounds of the Germania Society, where a balloon was to have made an ascension yesterday, were interrupted by an unexpected fatal accident. The furnace for generating hot air to inflate the balloon, together with apparatus pertaining to the balloon, were located on the east side of the grounds, on either side of which were two high poles similar to those used at tent-poles for circusses, stayed up with ropes. As the preliminaries preparatory to inflating the balloon were commenced, several men attempted to tighten the stay ropes. Whether the rope broke, or became loosened, the effect was the same.

The pole toppled, and as the rope supporting it loosened, it fell with a crash among the crowd that had gathered around to witness what was going on. All escaped but one, a woman, who still kept her seat on one of the benches scattered about the ground, the pole striking her on the back of the head and neck, and dislocating her neck, and probably causing instant death. The crowd gathered around the fallen woman, and she was conveyed into the Germania school building near by. Several physicians were on the ground, but the woman was beyond all medical assistance. Deceased was probably twenty-five years of age. She was a woman of rather questionable character, and is known as the wife of Beno Kattaino, proprietor of the New Orleans saloon.

AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE

To the Republican voters of Huntingdon county:

I announce myself as an "Independent Candidate" for Associate Judge, and ask the support of all honest and independent men who hate rings and "ring" candidates. Having stood by the Republican party from its birth up until its betrayal of the people, in the fraudulent adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment; I feel that I should have some claims upon the true men of that party.

I stand upon the Chicago platform, upon which Gen. Grant was elected; but I utterly repudiate the fraud and outrage by which the right of negroes to vote has been declared a part of the fundamental law of the land, blotting out a part of the Constitution of our own State, which as officers we are sworn to support.

If elected, I will endeavor to discharge my duties faithfully, and I flatter myself thatmy profession in life has not unfitted me for the position, besides, it would often be found a great convenience to have an Associate Judge residing in Huntingdon. JOHN WILLIAMSON.

A large number of our Methodist people went to the Wayne camp-meeting.

Bloody Run has 557 inhabitants, 84 dwellings, and 15 establishments of productive industry.

An exchange says, it costs the government six cents a head for each name enrolled under the census.

A female wild-cat, measuring four feet from tip to tip, was killed recently near Hopewell, Bedford county.

A lady out west has lost her voice from sleeping in a damp room. Her husband never enjoyed more peace.

A Memphis cook sent a family of seven to where no cooking is done by emptying a match-safe into the tea-pot.

Oliver Etner has been appointed postmaster at Vinegar Mills (?) this county, vice Alfred Etner, declined.

George Brown of Hollidaysburg, lost his little finger and crushed the back of his hand in an ice cream freezer, recently.

The Huntingdon County Fair is to be held four days commencing October 4. Let everybody prepare for it.

The "Indian" showman named Arthur Reeves who shot Wm. Baker, in Hollidaysburg recently, has been arrested in Ohio.

And Meek, of the Bellefonte Watchman, has been nominated for Senator by the Democrats of Centre county. Well, well!

An unfortunate man committed suicide at Chimney Rocks, near Hollidaysburg. He first drank whiskey, and then hung himself to a tree.

There are thirty-six establishments in this country engaged in publishing Sunday-school books. Is it any wonder there is so much trash thrown in?

For several days past, our town and vicinity has presented the appearance of Indian summer, owing to the smoke from a fire on the mountains.

A Railroad and canal meeting is to be held at Williamsburg on the 10th of September, for the purpose of ascertaining the practicability of keeping open the Penna. canal.

An ingenious New Yorker has learned how to keep an umbrella. He buys a big cotton one, fractures two ribs, and breaks off six inches of the handle. No one steals it.

Woman's sphere has been defined by a lady lecturer as "bounded north by her husband, on the east by her baby, on the south by her mother-in-law, and on the west by a maiden aunt."

A party of twenty-one in Connecticut went blueberrying. They gathered twelve bushels, and then went to dancing. When they started to go home the berries had all been devoured by bears.

The Buffalo Express lately contained the following: "Ac8c0ar8!" The next day it explained it thus: "It's easy. A c-aight (cat) c-aught (caught) a r-aight (rat)—a cat caught a rat! Ain't it?"

The French gentry are adopting the plan of inviting guests by series, to their chateaux And each invitation sets forth the exact length of time the guest is expected to stay, as well as the day he is to come. Not a bad plan.

By a recent act of the State Legislature, persons who have not graduated with the degree of M. D., or have failed to take out a county license, are prohibited from practicing medicine.

The Lewistown Democrat says: Professor Rogers, of Philadelphia, having reported that no traces of poison could be found in the stomach of the late Mrs. Bigelow, her husband, Dr. Bigelow, was released from jail.

An experienced physician has discovered, in the course of a long and varied practice, that every one wishes to go to heaven; also, that most people are willing to take a great deal of very disagreeable medicine first.

A personal sketch of a Western Senator closes as follows: "He cannot propel himself through the muddy pool of politics at a higher rate of speed than that of a rudderless polliwog through a kettle of cold mush."

What is the use of taking a foreign paper which contains no home news, and which you must pay twenty-five cents extra for postage, when you can get your home papers, filled to the brim with the every-day local news transpiring at home, and postage free?

It is a remarkable fact that when some men allow a newspaper bill to run three or four years they are invariably astonished that it should be so large. As a general thing such individuals intimate that they "will be in town in a day or two and see about it." But they never come, and that is a part of the philosophy most disagreeable to us.

County Committee Meeting.

☞ The INDEPENDENT is a model newspaper that no intelligent man who is interested in the live questions of the day, whether of religious, political, moral or social philosophy, can afford to do without. We have no hesitation in saying that the various questions that agitate the country or the world, and are subjects of deep interest to every intelligent, thinking man, receive more careful, thorough and independent discussion in the pages of the Independent, than in any other weekly paper published. It has an able, efficient and independent corps of writers, among whom will be found some of the most profound scholars and ablest thinkers of the country, while the fame of its editor, Theodore Tilton, is world wide. We peruse its pages week after week, with increasing interest and would not think of doing without it. If any of our friends wish to secure for themselves a genuine weekly literary treat, we advise them to send for a specimen number and they will be sure to subscribe for it regularly. Address the Independent, box 2787, New York.

BITTEN BY A SNAKE.—The Juniata Sentinel says: A few nights ago a child—daughter of Rev. J. A. McGill, of Tuscarora Valley—feeling thirsty went down stairs to get a drink. The water being out on a porch, the child went out there and drank. On closing the outside door on her return she noticed that it did not close with its usual freedom. She also felt something about her feet. After getting to bed one ankle pained her so much that she cried. The father examined her ankle and discovered singular punctures and a good deal of swelling.—Thinking that the hurt was received at the door, and conjecturing the cause, he immediately went down stairs to the outside door, under which he found a large copperhead snake.—Mr. McGill put his lips to the wound and sucked the poison out, and thereby in all probability saved the life of his child. The child, we have been informed, is getting well.

RUN OFF.—Two young men named Frank Willoughby and Milton Miller, of this place, met with an accident on Thursday night last from which they luckily escaped without serious injury. They were driving in a new buggy up Washington street when their horse took fright at seeing a pile of brick in the street and started off at a rapid gait, running to one side and striking the buggy against a wagon, thereby breaking the coupling and upsetting both the occupants. Miller became entangled in the inverted buggy, and was dragged a short distance. The horse ran about a square when he fell down in the street, and was unable to extricate himself until relief came.—The buggy was badly damaged and the horse received some severe bruises on the hind legs.

MAGNIFICENT SIGHT.—We had a most unusual visitor, for the time of year, on Friday night last, in the shape of a brilliant display of the aurora borealis, or "Northern lights." Shortly before nine o'clock the northern sky was illuminated with a bright crimson light, which led many of the spectators to wonder where the fire was; but such speculation was soon ended, when the true cause was known, and the brilliant but pale green rays shot towards the zenith, the colors changing rapidly and the illumination varying in intensity every moment. The scene lasted about an hour, affording many of our citizens a splendid opportunity for heavenly observations.

The true solution of the cause of the aurora borealis has never been satisfactorily explained by scientific men, but its occurrence is said to precede a fall in the temperature.

☞ The days are getting shorter, and the chilling evening air suggests that icy winter is approaching rapidly; but this should make no difference to persons who can never want for good Bread, Cakes, &c., so long as Mr. Luke Reilly bakes and keeps them on hand. His Candies are universally recommended as just the thing, being pure and harmless for the little ones, and very desirable for the bigger ones.

☞ By a card in another column it will be seen that Mr. Charles A. Estes has taken the place of Mr. Dickey on the Valley Farm, and that he will supply those of our citizens in want with Cream, Milk, etc. We can assure our citizens that Mr. Estes is the right man in the right place, and that he will not fail to give satisfaction.

NOTICE.—We are now offering our present stock of Dress Goods, Hosieries, Cassimers, &c., at extremely low prices. Good Delaines at 15 cents a yard. 2t HENRY & Co.

White Man's Party.

The farmers, mechanics and laboring men of Huntingdon county will hold a Convention in the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on TUESDAY, the 30th day of AUGUST, at 1 o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of nominating a county ticket.

The Convention will be composed of two delegates from each township, borough, ward and election district in the county for the purpose of nominating candidates for the following offices:—Associate Judge, County Commissioner, Director of the Poor, Jury Commissioner and County Auditor.

It is to be hoped that those who are opposed to the corrupt wire-working politicians in this county, and believing that white men are competent to rule, will lend their aid in selecting good, honest and reliable white men as candidates for the above offices.

By order of the Committee.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says: I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other in case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

XXVII.

PEACHES—PEARS—CHERRIES—GRAPES.

Our harsh, capricious climate north of the latitudes of Philadelphia, Cincinnati, and St. Louis—so much severer than that of corresponding latitudes in Europe—is unfavorable, or at least very trying to all the more delicate and luscious Fruits, berries excepted. Except on our Pacific coast, of which the Winter temperature is at least ten degrees milder than that of the Atlantic, the finer Peaches and Grape are grown with difficulty north of the fortieth degree of latitude, save in a few specially favored localities, whereof the southern shore of Lake Erie is most noted, though part of that of Lake Ontario and of the west coast of Lake Michigan are likewise well adapted to the Peach.

It is not the mere fact that the mercury in Fahrenheit's thermometer sometimes ranges below zero, and the earth is deeply frozen, but the suddenness wherewith such rigor succeeds and is succeeded by a temperature above the freezing point, that proves so inhospitable to the most valued tree Fruits. And, as the dense forests which formerly clothed the Alleghenies and the Atlantic slope, are year by year swept away, the severity of our "cold snaps" and the celerity with which they appear and disappear are constantly aggravated. A change of 60 degs, or from 50 above to 10 below zero, between morning and the following midnight, soon followed by an equally rapid return to an average November temperature, often proves fatal even to hardy forest-trees. I have had the Red Cedar in my woods killed by scores during an open, capricious Winter; and my observation indicates the warmest spots in a forest as those where trees are most likely to be thus destroyed. After an Arctic night, in which they are frozen solid, a bright sun sends its rays into the warmest nooks, whence the wind is excluded, and wholly or partially thaws out the small trees, which are suddenly frozen solid again so soon as the sunshine is withdrawn; and this partly explains to my mind the fact that peach buds are often killed in lower and level portions of an orchard, while they retain their vitality on the hill-side and at its crest, not 80 rods distant from those destroyed. The fact that the colder air decends into and remains in the valleys of a rolling district contributes also to the correct explanation of a phenomenon which has puzzled some observers.

Unless in a favored locality, it seems to me inadvisable for a farmer who expects to thrive mainly by the production of Grain and Cattle, to attempt the growing of the finer Fruits, except for the use of his own family. In a majority of cases, a multiplicity of cares and labors precludes his giving to his Peaches and Grapes, his Plums and Quinces, the seasonable and persistent attention which they absolutely require. Quite commonly, a farmer visits a grand nursery, sees with admiration its trees and vines loaded with the most luscious Fruits, and rashly infers that he has only to buy a good stock of like Trees and Vines to insure himself an abundance of delicious fruit. So he buys and sets, but with no such preparation of the soil, and no such care to keep it mellow and free from weeds, or to baffle and destroy predatory insects, as the nurseryman employs. Hence the utter disappointment of his hopes; borers, catorpillars, and every known or unknown species of insect enemies, prey upon his neglected favorites. At intervals, some domestic animal or animals get among them, and break down a dozen in an hour. So, the far greater number come to grief without having had one fair chance to seow what they could do, and the farmer jumps to the conclusion, that the nurseryman was a swindler, and the trees he sells scarcely related to those whose abundant and excellent fruits tempted him to buy. I counsel every farmer to consider thoughtfully, the treatment absolutely required for the production of the finer Fruits before he allows a nurseryman to make a bill against him, and not expect to grow Duchesse Pears as easily as Blackberries, or Jonas and Catawbas as readily as he does fox-grapes on the willows which overhang his brook; for if he does he will surely be disappointed.

Some of our hardier and coarser Grapes—the Concord pre eminent among them—are grown with considerable facility over a wide extent of our country; and many farmers, having planted them in congenial soil, and tended them well throughout their infancy, and rewarded by a bounteous product for two or three years. Believing their success assured they imagine that their vines may henceforth be neglected, and in the course of two or three more years they are often utterly ruined. I know that there are wild grapes of some value, in the absence of better, which thrive and bear without attention; but I do not believe that any grape which will sell in a market where good fruit was ever seen can be grown north of Philadelphia but by constant care and labor, or at a cost of less than five cents per pound, under the most judicious and skillful treatment. In California, and I presume in most of our States south of the Potomac and Ohio, choice grapes may be grown more abundantly and more cheaply. Yet I think the localities are few and far between in which a tun of good grapes can be grown as cheaply as a tun of wheat, under the most judicious cultivation in either case.

I do not mean to discourage grape-growing; on the contrary, I would have every farmer, even so far north as Vermont or Wisconsin, experiment cautiously with a dozen of the most promising varieties, including always the more hardy, in the hope of finding some one or more adapted to his soil, and capable of enduring his climate. Even in France, the land of the vine, one farm will produce a grape which the very next will not; no man can satisfactorily say why. The farmer, who has tried half a dozen grapes, and failed with all, should not be deterred from further experiments; for the very next may prove a success. I would only say be moderate in your experiments; and never risk even $100 on a vineyard, till you have ascertained, at a cost of $5 or under, whether the species you are testing will thrive and bear on your soil.

In my own case, my up land mainly sloping to the west, with a hill rising directly south of it, I have had no luck with grapes, and I have wasted little time or means upon them. I have done enough to show that they can be grown; even in such a locality, but not to profit or satisfaction.

I would advise the farmer who proposes to grow Pears, Peaches, and Quinces for home use only or mainly, to select a piece of dry, gravelly or sandy loam, underdrain it thoroughly, plow or trench it very deeply, and fertilize it, generously, in good part with ashes and with leaf mold from his woods. Locate the pigpen on one side of it, fence it strongly, and let the pigs have the run of it for a good portion of each year. In this plat or yard, plant half a dozen Cherry and, as many Pear trees of choice varieties, the Bartlett foremost among them keep clear of all dwarfs, and let your choicest trees have a chance to run under the pigpen if they will. Plant here also, if your climate does not forbid, a dozen well-chosen Peach trees, and two each year thereafter to replace those that will soon be dying out; and give half a dozen Quinces moist and rich locations by the side of your fences; surrounding each tree with stakes or pickets that will preclude too great familiarity on the part of the swine, and will not prevent a sharp scrutiny for borers in their season.—Do not forget that a fruit tree is like a cow tied to an immovable stake, from which you cannot continue to draw a pail of milk per day unless you carry her a liberal supply of food; and every fall cart in half a dozen loads of muck from some convenient swamp or pond for your pigs to turn over. Should they leave any weeds, cut them with a scythe as often as they seem to need it; never allowing one to ripen seed. There may be easier and surer ways to obtain choice fruits, but this one commends itself to my judgment as not surpassed by any other.

DO NOT PASS BY GWIN'S.

ADDRESS

TO THE

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpatation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

DISEASES OF THESE ORGANS REQUIRE THE USE OF A

DIURETIC.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee is all we represent it to, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts, medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by
